

Cooking Matters Host Agency Application

Thank you for your interest in offering Cooking Matters to your students/clients! Cooking Matters is a national program of Share Our Strength that empowers participants to choose and prepare tasty, healthy, and affordable meals in a fun and interactive classroom setting.

To ensure the success of each Cooking Matters (CM) course series, we rely upon strong community collaborations. We offer our courses in partnership with schools and community agencies in order to reach participants at locations that are familiar and accessible to them.

There are many resources that are needed in order to operate a Cooking Matters course: funding, instructors, instructor training, teaching space, food, equipment, office supplies, grocery shopping and delivery, course evaluation, supplies and facilities coordination, classroom management, and participant transportation and/or childcare when necessary. Cooking Matters courses are successful when The Idaho Foodbank and the applying Host Site/Host Agency share the responsibility of providing these resources.

In order to be considered as a Host Site/Host Agency for a Cooking Matters course, please read the New Agency Info Packet, and contact the CM coordinator with any questions you may have. Once you have reviewed the information packet, please complete and submit this application.
